FAMINE IN SHEEPSKINS SKIPS PHILADELPHIA

Graduates of Institutions in Quaker City Zone Get Diplomas in Usual Form

Colleges and universities of Philadelphia and vicinity have so far escaped the "sheepskin famine" which is prevalent in many of the halls of learning throughout the land.

Up in Massachusetts, where the sheepskin is always in great demand, they are handing out engraved paper certificates until enough sheep can be prevailed upon to produce their hides for diplomas instead of bequeathing them for an ignominious end on a European battlefield.

But Philadelphia is more fortunate. Boston changes cows into shoes, while Philadelphia changes sheep into cloth and carefully preserves the skin in the process for its many learned sons and daughters.

At Bryn Mawr College sheepskins were awarded as usual this year. Students of Villa Nova and Temple University likewise received the coveted documents in the genuine form.

Out at Haverford, President Sharpless, with true Quaker foresight, had an ample supply on hand and reported "business as usual." W. A. Alexander, registrar of Swarthmore College, placed his sheepskins in the hands of the students for this year's supply, but for next year also.

Corns Stop Hurting, Then They Lift Out With Fingers

No pain or soreness! Corns and calluses just shrivel up and lift off.

A noted Cincinnati chemist discovered a new ether compound called it freezone, and it now can be had in tiny bottles for a few cents from any drug store.

You simply apply a few drops of freezone upon a tender corn or painful callus and instantly the soreness disappears, then shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you can just lift it off with the fingers.

No pain, not a bit of soreness, either when applying freezone or afterwards, and it doesn't even irritate the skin.

Hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes, also toughened calluses just shrivel up and lift off so easy. It is wonderful! It works like a charm. Try it!

Utmost out of man power—and all other power—now

A quick, small-caliber, steady stream of fire has given to the individual soldier the greatest possible extension of his offensive and defensive powers.

And in war economy of men is the first essential.

Just as in motoring the economy of gasoline is now a really important consideration.

The twelve small, quick-firing cylinders of the Twin-six motor—wresting the utmost out of every drop of gasoline—deliver a steady stream of mighty power.

Flexible power which masters the need of the moment—three miles an hour through down-town traffic or sixty miles on some fine country straight-away.

And added to this Twin-six thrift is the greater economy of time and man power for every Packard owner. Reasons all—for the great increase in Packard sales.
